The GROW BIOINTENSIVE Agriculture Centre of Kenya (G-BIACK) won the PELUM Kenya 2019 organization of the year award by emerging the overall Best Exhibitor during the 2019 Networking Symposium held at the KCB grounds in Nairobi Kenya. The event participants were the member organizations of Participatory Ecological Land Use Management (PELUM) Kenya. The PELUM networking association has a total of 55 member organizations in Kenya.

G-BIACK exhibited some of the interventions that farmers are taught at our training centre in Thika. G-BIACK's agricultural and vocational training programs provide rural farmers and their communities with opportunities to learn sustainable farming methods, as well as other solutions to the regional issues of food security, health, and poverty. Over the past ten years G-BIACK has helped over 15,000 Kenyan small-scale farmers to raise their own food using soil regeneration and highly productive, ecological agriculture techniques. In addition to its general training programs, G-BIACK also provides separate programs to specifically help an often-marginalized group in this society: women and girls, including widows impoverished by the effects of HIV/AIDS.
