HIV/ AIDS AND NUTRITION

The HIV/AIDS epidemic in Kenya continues to be a major challenge to our people. Over 1.5 million have died due to AIDS related illnesses mostly brought about by lack of proper nutrition. It is estimated that more than 1.4 m people in Kenya are currently HIV positive.

GROW BIOINTENSIVE Agriculture Center of Kenya (G-BIACK) has come up with strategies for ensuring that people living with HIV AIDs (PLWHA), especially women and children, are given the necessary support to be able to live like other normal people. G-BIACK has designed projects that will hope and longer life to PLWHA. One of the projects is the Nutrition Kitchen Gardens Project (NKGPP) where women are trained on how to establish gardens where they are able grow their own food with emphasis on indigenous local vegetables. G-BIACK offers full training in kitchen gardening. Women who are not able to purchase seeds are given small amounts which they are taught to multiply for future planting.

In the One Dairy Goat Per Family Project (ODGF), organized groups from different communities are given at least one dairy goat. When the goat gives birth, the kid is given to one member of the group and the offspring of the goats continue to be shared until each member owns a goat. This is another sustainable way of ensuring that malnutrition and extreme poverty among the women is reduced. Dairy goat milk is good for PLWHA because it supplies the required protein, besides being an immunity booster.

We are requesting our friends and partners to help us to reach out to more PLWHA women and children with these and other programmes by donating any amount of money (via credit card) on the INDIEGOGO platform.
